VOLUME VI NUMBER 9 THE GOLD CENTER THE NEVADA CITY NUGGET, CALIFORNIA THE COUNTY SEAT PAPER FRIDAY, JANUARY 8, 1932

Eastern Nevada County Unknown

Mining properties situate in the Washington Mining district, Township 17, R 11 E, MDM., Nevada County, State of California, and ten miles north of Emigrant Gap station of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

A better approach to the properties, is by way of Nevada City, thence over the Harmony ridge highway to Bear Valley, before proceeding into the valley, a road will be observed turning to the north, this road extends to the Salathiel and surrounding properties and is in good shape, the Forest Servece having recently rebuilt the road to this point.

Situated on the south fork of the Yuba River, and twelve hundred feet below from where the road terminates, is the Eagle Bird Mine, from which a million and a half of dollars were taken during the hey days of gold mining, the property is now being operated by Arizona interests from whom much can be expected in the development and future production from ore reserves unexplored.

Owing to the close relationship of the above property to the Salathiel, and the close observations I had reason to make of their respective positions, nothing is more convincing through the development of the Eagle Bird as a prospective value to ore reserves associated with the Salathiel vein.

From the apex of the Salathiel to the collar of the Eagle Bird shaft, is twelve hundred feet vertical depth, and from this level down to the bottom of the Eagle Bird shaft, is approximately eight hundred feet, two thousand feet from the plateau above. From the river level up is practically virgin ground, owing to plain faults and those in charge not having familiarided themselves with the conditions and geological surroundings no exploration of the foot wall country from development of the lower regions is in evidence, and why ownership to the Salathiel neglected so important matters pertaining to the further development of the property remains a problem untold.

During my residence in the vicinity of these mines I made acquaintances of many of the old time miners and mill men who were well versed in the operations and extraction in gold values from the different mines of the vicinity, these men have all pased on and information from these sources though interesting and of importance to the prospective negotiations to further operations leaves it more of a speculative understanding owing to the work having caved from which convincing data is generally obtained. However, the following information was given me by the man who ran the mill while the Salathiel was in operation fifty years ago and from ore extracted, many tons plated as high as fifty cents a pound, regardless of the above facts, from my own observations and sampling of the vein while the works were accessable, I am convinced a shoot of ore exists not less than five hundred feet in length, and will run in value exceeding that of any of the properties of the vicinity producing their millions.

The original work belonging to the property consists of a long shallow tunnel driven to tap the vein at a depth of approximately sixty feet below the out crop and just how much ore was taken from these works is not recorded, but from the information given me by the mill operator, of the five stamps, five sets of shoes and dies were replaced in the operations, the owners were apparently a lot of sea captains and farmers on a vacation, and instead of the pack train, then in use, bringing supplies, it was loaded down with good old Scotch whiskey, which is conclusive evidence, that hte mine was of less importance than the good time indulged in.

With modern equipment and good general ship, there is no reason why this property shouldn't be made a very intersting subject to California's gold mining industry.

During the years '14, and '15, I personally operated an adjoining property known as the Gold Bug, my plan of attack being towards the Salathiel series, the work is located on the south slope of the river canon and three hundred feet below the apex to the vein, in driving the tunnel from this point of vantage a very faulty condition was encountered, a natural sequence owing to the dip of the lode being replaced from the great break of the river plane and leaving only fragment o fthe systems on down the river slope, which is mainly the raeson why, more exhaustive plans of attack were not indulged in, results of the fractured zone, will extend many feet back into the mountain before the vein will take up its natural position, therefore, those engaged in the operations will be wise in engaging resposible and intelligent men of the profession who will familiarize themselves with conditions before jumpiing to conclusions, such costly mistakes are not recoverable, and very often lead to the abandonment of what would otherwise hace developed commercial mines.

Although no record of the returns were kept from this property the legends in the richness of the ore, and my personal contact with the results of my work is convincing evidence formulative to a good opinion of the probabilities, and as a gold producer I feel safe in saying, that no better opportunity exists where costs and returns are the essential features.

-fftaio.drasoohacl /usicnsw (,brn

Economy in the attack is a pronounced feature to this project and by continuing the tunnel so economically situated a speedy accounting to the merits of the property would soon be determined. Calling attention to the results of ore taken from this tunnel, I built an arrastra and in this way treated ten ton.

This was picked stone, gold being visible, and considerable of it was picture rock.

Owing to ohter negotiations taking place, I abandoned the work for what apparently appeared, would ultimately develop the property on a much bigger scale, but unfortunately, the World War was by this time in full swing, and gold mining ceased to exist, and with the flotilla I took my leave.

During the year 1924, I was induced to go back, and in so doing, I took up extentions to the south of the Salathiel following along the strike of the same series, one one of the claims an old tunnel driven many years ago, attracted my attention, and on closer observatoins of what it had ben driven for, I was induced to reopen the tunnel, with the result of opening the ground above the level encountering a three foot vein, with an average assay of eight dollars perton, I then rasied on the vein another twenty feet, here I encountered high grade running into the thousands of dollars per ton, again I was confornted with litigation and other problems of a distasteful nature, and retired to other

MASQUE BALL WAS EVENT OF SEASON

Redmen's Hall was thronged with gay maskuers and spectators on New Years Eve when the Firemen gave their masquer ball.

Just preceding the dance the audience enjoyed several musical selections by Mrs. Charles Elliott, the Misses Hansen and the Cartocelli boys. Marshall Giselman accompanied Mrs. Elliott and the Misses Hansen on the piano.

Lloyd Penrose and assistants are to be given praise for their artistic work of decorating the hall in ferns and greenery.

The orchestra from Sacramento were given much praise by the dancers.

About thirty prizes were awarded to as many artistic and well sustained characters.

This event is eagerly looked forward to each year and is always enjoyed by masquers and spectators.

ALTA VIEW MINE ..... PREPARES TO WORK

The Alta View Mine has been delayed in operating to any great extent thru the lack of fuel. The recent storms made the roads impassable until at this time when Grant & Heether, sawmill owners, will use their caterpillar to haul the supplies to the property.

This mine is situated six miles north east of Camptonville and comprises 1400 acres in all. There are about 7000 feet of virgin gravel to be worked. At this time the mine is being worked by drifting. They are in 2800 feet and expect to go 4000 feet further.

There are about 4000 feet of tracks in the different tunnels. The company has recently constructed a new 300 car capacity gravel bin, and 300 feet of flumes. They expect to handle from 80 to 100 cars of gravel daily. The gravel that is taken from the drifts is washed and the gold taken at the end of the flume in the sluice boxes.

In the early days parts of these properties were hydraulicked.

There are 6 or 7 men employed at present and when in full operation it is expected that about 20 men will be employed.

Dr. Clyde Wayland of San Jose is owner of the property.

C. N. Chatfield of Pike City is superintendent.

DONNER SUMMIT NOW OPEN TO TRAFFIC

The Donner Summit on the Auburn-Truckee highway was reopened for traffic Wednesday, January 6th. It has been closed more than a week by one of the heaviest snow storms to visit the Sierra Nevada Mountains in several decades. The Summit was opened after valient work by state division of highway crews working with the latest snow ploy equipment at below zero temperatures.

People going to the summit for scenery will be disappointed as traffic has to pass thru a virtual snow tunnel, with banks of snow 15 feet high on each side. This prevents a view of scenery.

Part of the road is only a one way road and trucks or large cars wider than 75 inches cannot go over the pass till the road is widened.

NUMONT TAKES OVER MURCHIE JANUARY FIRST

The formal transfer of the Murchie Mine was made last Thursday afternoon in the filing in the recorder's office of a deed from the American Foundation Co. and M. C. C. Van Loben Sels and wife to the Star Mines Co., Ltd.

The property conveyed consists of the Murchie Mines, with mineral rights of the Long property on the north side of the Red Dog road, mineral rights of the Kistle homestead; the Morgan and Tilley ground; the Texas Mine and mineral rights of an unpatented quartz mine known as the Charleston.

While no definite program has been mapped out at this time it is understood the new holders plan extensive development work. As the mine develops a larger number of men will be employed than has been in the past.

The new company plans to sink the present shaft an additional depth of about 300 feet, and this work will begin at once.

KEYSTONE DELIVERY CAR CROWDED OFF HIGHWAY

The Keystone Meat Market delivery car was crowded off the highway near the Gold Flat school house and turned over into the ditch. The driver, Harry Stephens, luckily escaped out of the wreckage with only a bruised arm.

The top of the delivery car was wrecked.

The accident happened late yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. L. M. Day was summoned to Manteca to be at the bedside of her mother, Mrs. C. S. Salmon ,who is quite ill.

EDITOR NUGGET AND JOURNAL IS IMPROVING

Mrs. Elsie P. Willoughby, editor and publisher of The Nevada City Nugget and California Mining Journal, who was operated upon last Tuesday a week ago, is making a satisfactory recovery from a major operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnet of Denver were Nevada City visitors this week. Mr. Arnet, a mining man, is here looking over different mining properties.

Sierra County Mining Outlook Seems Good

Sierra County is so closely associated with Nevada County that it is hard to distinguish the line between the two when writing up the mining conditions in this section.

In commencing at Goodyears Bar there is found to be a great deal of activity. Mining men predict a future for this district.

There are about a dozen properties working in this camp among them being the Alphaderrer, Kirkpatrick, Tim Dolan & Son, Brush Creek, Sctoos Flat.

In the Downieville mining district a number of mines have been bonded and owners are developing others.

Among the mines at this place are Old Colony, City of Six, Finney, Standard, Australia, and Bessler This is only mentioning a few of the many promising properties and many of them have good past production records. Several of these mines are operating at the present time.

In the old ghost town of Monte Christo there are also a number of promising old properties with large past produciton records. A gravel property in this district is the Excelsior, and H S. Tibbey of Downieville owns the Brown Bear a quartz property there.

Alleghany which is a familiar name to all mining men, on account of its being the home of the richest high grade mine known, the Sixteen-to -One-Tightner, has several properties working at this time. The Sixteen-to-One-Tightner, and Yellow Jacket are operating. In a recent communication to The Neavda City Nugget it was stated the past production record of the Sixteen-to-One Mine was about $10,000,000.

In the same district there are situated the Plumbago, Mornnig Glory Rainbow. The past production records of these and several other properties read like a fairy book with several of them running into the millions.

At Forest which is two miles from Alleghany several properties are being developed. Among them are the Bald Top, and Ruby. They have large past production records. The Ruby mine has been hampered for lack of water. At this time there are several men working.

In the Sierra City district there will be found the Sierra Buttes, Primrose, Monarch, Bigelow, Colombo Sacred Mount, Commadore, beside many others. All of these properties have been operating within the last few months and a few of them are operating at the present time.

The heavy snow fall and rains which have come before the end of 1931 assure these mining districts an abundance of water and many of the mines will be operating as soon as the snow starts melting.

With the bond market in an uncertain condition and financiers looking about for good investments it won't be long till many of these mines will be working with profit to their owners.

TUOLUMNE APPRECIATES MINING ADVERTISING

The following article is copied in full from the Union Democrat of Sonora to give some idea of how other mining districts appreciate the publicity given to their mines.

The Nevada City Nugget has been worknig along these lines about five years and people are slowly coming to the realization that boosting your mining district pays in good hard cash.

Very often people come into The Nugget office and state that they did not realize that this section held such great possibilities to the mine investor. The great Newmont Mining Company, with New York capital, realizes this and has secured one of the most promising properties in the Nevada City district, the Murchie Mine, within the last few days.

We should have more men in public position and in business in Nevada County, to put forth greater efforts in boosting the plain facts of our mine possibilities.

In this issue we carry an article telling of an idle property in the eastern part of Nevada County that shows gold to the naked eye in the ore!

Our needs are more good boosters for our extensive, and rich mining district.

Mr. Harris, mentioned in this article, has made many fine contributions to The Nevada City Nugget, also.

MINING PUBLICITY IS AIDING TUOLUMNE COUNTY

Essentially a mining area with a glorious early day record in the production of gold and with its treasure troves only thus far superficially developed, Tuolumne County enters the new year of 1932 with greater activity in its mines and prospects than has prevailed in the last thirty years or more, and looks upon the future with a confidence that is truly inspiring.

World wide business conditions have accentuated the need of new and more gold. Undeniable proof of this necessity is supplied by the abandonment of the gold standard by a majority of the nations in the closing months of 1931. Two-thirds of the monetary gold of the world is held today by two nations—America and France, with the greater proportion of that hoard in the possession of the former. The nations which have forsaken the gold standard have not done so by choice It was caused by the dwindling supply of their store of the metal, which they have been compelled, as a last resort, to conserve in order to maintain some semblance of solvency.

The necessity for such action was not of sudden origin. It is aftermath of the World War and is directly attributable to economic conditions resulting thereform. Quite naturally it has created a shortage of gold among the nations that must sooner or later be supplied if normal trade is to be restored. This, in turn, has caused the public mind to give serious thought to the production of new gold with the result that a new cycle of activity in that division of mining is a-borning.

Tuolumne County offers an excellent field for the production of new wealth-gold. There is no gainsaying this fact. It has yielded millions upon millions of placer and lode gold in the past as evidenced by government statictics. Its latent coffers of the yellow metal, despite their enormous production in bygone days, have scarcely been touched. To acquaint the world with the gold mining activities, possibilities and opportunities present within its borders, Ray D. Harris, a mining writer of recognitized ability and wide newspaper connections , has since last March been publishing them through his writings. These have attracted mining capitalists and operators from far and near and caused a revival of mining throughout Tuolumne County that augers well for the future. This gratifying condition has given and is giving increased employment in mniing and other lines of endeavor that undoubtedly will steadily improve to the material benefit of merchants of all lines of trade, owners of mining and residence property; in fact Tuolumne County and its people as a whole have profited and are profiting therefrom, directly or indirectly.

Mr. Harris' work has been made possible through financial support and public-spiritedness of merchants and other business men, who recognize its great monetary value to Sonora, in particular, and the county, in general.

Due to the foresight of the supervisors, the county government officially recognized its material and far-reaching worth by giving its financial help. The Union Democrat has no hesitancy in saying that Mr. Harris' publicity work has already brought excellent results; therefore, we again heartily endorse it. Financial support for its continuance should not be lacking. It is purely a business investment. In addition to

LOOKING FORWARD

For more than two years we have endured one of the most severe and prolonged general depressions of all time—in company with the other great nations of the world. There is no magic remedy for curing economic ills—how soon our problems will be solved, largely, is up to us, as individuals, and as members of a complicated society.

Ninteen-thirty-two is a "Presidential year". Ordinarily, such an election and the political questions it raises, would loom large on the horizon. But this is not an ordinary period, and local political issues—so far as they attach themselves to men and parties—have become, in the public mind, a very small thing when contrasted with economic and social issues. People who are wondering how to find jobs, are not interested in partisan platforms nor in political bickerings.

The greatset danger of a depression is that we may lose our heads—that a sort of mob hysteria may take the place of reason. We may try to overcome economic law with panaceas. Already many such efforts are being proposed—the new Congress, before it has completed its session, will be swamped with suggestions for relieving the unemployed with gigantic bond issues; for helping the farmer with governmental subsidies and attempts at price-fixation; for helping the small business at the expense of the large one; for hlping the poor and those of moderate means by overtaxing the wealthy.

While such proposals may be made in good faith, most of them are based on misconseptions.

Prosperity will return as the result of stimulated employment, stimulated buying, stimulated trade, commerce and building. We cannot produce that by frightening the capital we need. We cannot do it through governmental meddling, which inevitably forces retrenchement and inaction on the businesses it touches—and, by example, on the entire business structure. The potential destructive forces of politics cannot be measured.

We cannot create prosperity by heaping additional tax burdens on businesses and individuals already struggling under a tremendous tax bill. Robbing Peter to pay Paul is not sound economics. All taxes must eventually be paid by the public—business must pass all costs onto those who buy its products or services. For the nation to go further into debt, to appropriate additional millions and bililons for temporary and unsound relief schemes, is the height of folly.

Our basic industries have shown a commendable spirit in seeking to solve their problems, which, in reality, are the workers' problems and the consumers' problems. Electricity, insurance, oil, gas, railroads, form organizations—all have shown progressive tendencies. They realize the duty that is upon them to prevent so far as possible, the up-and-down swing of the business chart in the future—the booms that are followed by drops, the inflation that precedes deflation. They are working to stabilize employment, to find a means of assuring the good worker his livelihood at all times, to protect the future to workers when they get beyond their point of usefulness. Business can do this better than government. What the dole has done to England, it would do to a greater degree to the United States for we spend money on a more lavish scale for all things. It could plunge us into debt to the point of bankruptcy and crowd business to the edge of ruin with taxes. The dole shatters selfrespect—and, in England, it has apparently helped to aggravate unemployment by discouraging industrial expansion.

There are problems, of course, that no nation by itself can hope to solve, problems of international significance. These, too, the public must take an interest in, if we are to have officials capable of representing us in the work of world rehabilitation.

STATE HUNTER BRUCE KILLS MANY LIONS

Records so far show that Jay Bruce, lion hunter for the Division of Fish and Game, has taken 25 mountain lion during the past year. Many of these carnivores were taken in game refuges maintained by the state. According to J. S. Hunter, in charge of the bureau of Refuges, this record of more than two mountain lions per month for one hunter is considered excellent.

Bruce said that amountain lion is estimated to kill at least one deer per week. Many other animals such as sheep, cattle and horses suffer from the depredations of lions unless affored protection.

The average life of a lion under normal conditions is 16 years, the hunter said. If a person cares to do a little estimating it can be readily seen that many deer have been saved through the activities of this one hunter alone—rates of increase in the lion family and many other points must be considered.

Bruce has been hunting lions for the state since the year 1919 and has killed more than 40 during that time, records show.

TWO MINES TAKEN OVER BY MCSORLEY

Acting in the interest of eastern associates, John J. McSorley, Mokelumne Hill mining operator, has acquired, under lease and bond, from Percy Peek and Robert Irvine, also of that town, the Foote and Thompson Mine, notable early day lode gold producer, idle and involved in litigation for 20 years, on the Mokelumne River six miles east of that town. Preparations are under way for the early rehabilitation of the property, embracing 130 acres, which has two drift tunnels, 1,100 and 1,700 in length and a 240 foot crosscut tunnel, all in good condition. On and above these workings, there are available 150,000 tons of $8 per ton ore, according to an assay survey recently made by Mr. McSorley. The property is equipped with a 20-stamp mill and a full compliment of mining amchinery.

With Oakland business men as partners, Charles Nielsen of San Andreas has taken over, under lease and bond, from the Ancient River Corporation of Boston, Mass., the Cassinelli placer gravel mine, covering 58 acres, four miles west of San Andreas. A force of miners is at present reconditioning a 2,000-foot bedrock tunnel, the extension of which was halted by the company in 1917 on account of the high cost of development work during the World War. In early day operations, the property richly rewarded its pioneer surface miners, according to reports.

NEW YEAR TO SEE NASHVILLE DIST. BUSY

Months of exploration and development work on the Montezuma Mine, seven miles north of Nashville on the Mother Lode Highway, are terminating in installation of a new ten-stamp mill and other equipment. The operators, according to A Price and Ray Fontaine, directing the work, expect to start production on a large scale in the immediate future.

The Montezuma, one of the old-time producers of El Dorado County, has been idle for many years until recently, when it fell into new hands financed by San Francisco and Los Angeles mining men. For about four months a crew of twenty men has been employed in unwatering, cleaning out the workings and exploring the ore body, which was found to be promising enough for further development.

At the present time the shaft has been unwatered to the 800-foot level, thru installation of electric pumps, necessitating the extension of power lines more than a quarter of a mile. The ore body shows value sufficient to warrant milling and the completion of the new plant now being installed is expected to open a new ero of production for El Dorado County.

DOES NOT THE SNOW LOOK GRAND?

By Joe M. Swazey

Fluffie snow flakes everywhere
See them floating through the air
Millions will say, throughout this land
"Doesn't the snow lok grand?"

Snow flakes floating round and round
Oh! so high above the ground,
I hope they'll stick, and so do you
For Oh! what a world of good they'll do.

Snow is hard upon our feet
It's anything that we'd call sweet
But upon the mountains it's just the thing
For a bountiful water supply this Spring.

We wouldn't have water if it wasn't for snow
I think that's a fact, we all ought to know,
If we have water the mines will open
And give us the work, for which we are hoping

Yes Sir! fellows, this snow is a friend
But we really should say it is a God send,
Placer miners will realize, as an omen of cheer
To bring them a happy, and prosperous New Year.

ALL BEARS DO NOT HIBERNATE IN WINTER

Although bears are supposed to hibernate in the higher mountains when the snow falls deep and the going gets tough, there is at least one large bruin in the Tahoe district that doesn't hold any stock in this winter sleeping business.

A research worker for the Division of Fish andGame who was making wild life investigations in that locality met R. H. Watson and learned about this particular bear.

The meeting with the animal was singular in that it finally ended in a spirited contest, Watson said. It was not a hand to hand affair, but a wheel and leg contest. The bear won

Rounding a curve on the highway between Tahoe City and Carmelian bay, Watson found his automobile face to face with the large furry mammal. Snow plows had piled the season's fall high on each side of the roadway thus making automobile traffic possible.

The bear displayed indignation and deliberate independence. Instead of making for the tall timber, he wheeled for a race with the car. The challenge was accepted by man and his contrivance.

With the roadway slick, hard and smooth, bruin showed speed plus ability. The race lasted for several hundred yards before the mechanical engine made decided gain on the invention of Nature.

Then the bear veered in disgust from the runway. The cool, fluffy snow closed about him as the charging machine roared past. There was a fleeting exchange of real "bear" looks.

NOVEMBER GASOLINE TAX HAS TOTAL OF $3,253,708

Sacramento, Jan. 7—The state gasoline tax declined for November and a total of but $3,253,708.08 was assessed against the oil companies, compared with $3,374,836 in October, according to a statement by F. E. Stewart, member of the State Board of Equalization.

Comparing the November figure this year with an average of the last three months in 1930, when the tax was collected on a quarterly basis, Stewart found the 1931 tax for November was 2.2 per cent lower than the three month month average last year.

A total of $38,495,305 has been assessed by the Board during the first 11 months of 1931 against the oil companies, Stewart said.

"Proceeds from this source of revenue will probably be closely watched during the coming year, in view of the plan recently proposed to pay interest on highway bonds, issued prior to enactment of the gasilone tax law, from tax funds," Stewart declared.

"This is something which the legislature must settle as our Board's duty is solely to administer the tax. We have no control over the manner in which it is spent."

In making its assessments the Board added 1-99th to sales records to arrive at a production figure for the gasoline as required by law. The tax has been calculated on this production figure and is subject to a one per cent deduction for shrinkage following the legal formula. This makes the net tax three cents on each gallon actually sold. Out of 109,552,457 gallons assessed for November, 31 companies reported taxable distributions in excess of 300,000 gallons each.

Since one sweet year ago,
When I beheld your dainty grace,
With radiance aglow.

So winsome, sweet, appealing, fair—

Unto my heart, the one I'd sought.

MINING METHODS, COSTS CENTRAL-EUREKA MINE

Mining methods and costs at the Central-Eureka Mine, Amador, California, are discussed in a report recently published by the United States Bureau of Mines, Department of Commerce.

The Central-Eureka Mine, at Sutter Creek, is in the heart of the Mother Lode gold belt of California. The author, James Spiers, states that the mine is producing an average of 160 tons per day of ore carrying 4 to 20 dollars per ton in gold, and employs about 150 men.

The ore bodies now being exploited occur at depths of 3,500 to 4,500 feet, and consists of gold-bearing, quartz-filled veins in slate and greenstone. The veins range in width from 1 to 35 feet; stoping widths now average about 5 feet. The veins dip between 50 and 80 degrees. Ground pressure is extreme, and makes maintenance of development opening an important factor in the cost of mining.

The mine is developed by steeply inclined shafts, crosscuts to the vein, and drifts in the veins. On the lower levels all workings are heavily timbered. Stoping is done by overhand square-cutting. Timbering is kept close to the face, and all sets are filled with waste as soon as possible; more than two floors are never open at one time. Waste for filling is obtained by driving openings in the stope walls. Occasionally spiling must be used in sofe ground, to permit the placing of square-sets.

CHEROKEE DRIFT MINE INSTALL MILL MACHINERY

Machinery for the installation of a milling plant to be installed at the Cherokee Gravel Mine, near Oroville, has been delivered to the property.

The mill consists of five 6X22-foot pedal mills with a capacity of 200 tons each twenty-four hours. The first and secondary rock crushers, weighing 22,000 pounds, with a capacity of 75 tons an hour, will be installed. The paws of these breakers are 14X36 inches and allow large portions of rock and gravel to enter these breakers.

Water from a natural spring on the lava capped mountain will be delivered to the plant by the installation of 600 feet of pipe. The P. G. & E. Company is preparing to cut in a 250 horsepower electric transmission line to the property. The electricity will be used for mechanical and domestic purposes.

General Manager Jack Johnson states that installation of this first unit of mills is only one of a larger system to be installed when further developments have been completed. The larger system will be installed at the mouth of the drain tunnel at what is known as Saw Mill Ravine. This larger unit will have a capacity of 2,000 tons each 24 hours.

All materials on the property will be conveyed to the mill by a system of rubber belts. The hard formation of the tunnel, its large size and grade is a natural setting for this system of conveyance.

The Cherokee Gravel Drift Mine was worked by the hydraulic system for about 50 years. It has a world-wide reputation for the vast amount of gold recovered and the excessive amount of diamonds produced in the system of gold recovery. The mine has been idle for a number of years, owing to the debris law.

The manager predicts that the mine will now be transformed into one of the greatest gold producers in the state. A year of continuous development and testing of gravel was completed when the management decided to install the milling plant.

NINTH HEALTH ARTICLE WRITTEN BY CRONWELL

Article nine of a series of health articles written each week by Dr. B. G. Cronwell, Chiropractor and food scientist, formerly of San Francisco, Now of Nevada City.

Millions of dollars have been spent by concerns manufacturing electrical appliances trying to convince the public of their worth as an aid to regaining health. So far they haven't anything worth a pinch of salt to aid the sick, other than to furnish heat for a room or a pad to replace the hot water bottle or a hot lid. The older methods being far more economical. The writer knows of a good many Chiropractors who allowed high powered salesmen to so load their offices down with nickle plated electrical instruments and they became so busy and interested, trying to make them do the work the manufacturers claimed could be done, that they forgot to give their own Chiropractic adjusting and when their practice dwindled away to where they could not make expenses then they cry around about hard times. During 1931 about thirty five Chiropractors in California with thousands of dollars worth of electrical appliances in their offices, cleaned it all out and are now rebuilding their practices and are happy to be finished with their expensive experiment. As we have never been able to learn just what nerve energy is, a good many believe that nerve energy is the same as elctricity. Scientists do not know what electricity is, all they know is that they can harness and control it, to light lights and operate machinery. We do know that electricity can only be stored in metal. We hear so much about iron in the blood. We do not need so much iron to replenish our supply as we are led to believe. The grey matter of the brain and the center of each cell is the metallic part of the body. The barin is the storage battery with an ever lasting supply and nerve energy is continually passing from the brain through the spinal cord and out by way of the branches of the spinal cord to the little metal center of every cell in the body. This center is called the necleus. It does not matter to what age a person lives they always have a fully charged storage battery.

There is only one place in the body where the flow of nerve energy to the cells of the body can be interfered with and that is where the twenty four pairs of spinal nerves pass between the twenty six movable segments of the spine. If you have learned to keep your spine in perfect alignment by taking adjusting regularly then you are one of many happy people who are enjoying their health.

He is also collaborating with Henry W.
